Synopsis : 26 December 2004 is supposed to be a normal day in a university life for Tong. Instead, it's the day he receives shocking news that a tsunami has struck the south of Thailand and swept away many lives. At that moment, the only thing Tong can think of is Lin, but he cannot reach her. On that night, Tong decides to dig through old boxes filled with his memories. Certain items catch his attention: a ninth-grade English exercise book and a glittering new year card with a note that says 'Happy New Year 2000, Tong'. The message takes him back to that year and reminds him of his one and only love.

Back in 1999, Tong, at the age of 16, was the leader of a trouble-making gang at Kwanwinitwittaya School. The gang includes well-endowed Dong, always-acting-cool Bank, sleepy-faced Mai, and chubby-and-mature Pao. They were always up to no good, wreaking havoc at the school. One day, Tong and his friends played a prank in the middle of the classroom and got caught by the teacher. Tong was punished by being moved to sit in front of Lin, an outstanding student who was cute and smart. Lin kept a tight rein on Tong forcing him to study hard amidst the jealousy of all of Tong's friends as they all had a crush on Lin. Tong was the only one who escaped Lin's spell because he thought he was too 'cool' to be attracted to anyone.

One day Tong challenged Lin to a competition. If he got a lower grade than she did, he would shave his hair to skinhead. But if he got a higher grade, Lin would have to cut bangs, breaking the school's code of conduct! It's a battle between a troublemaker and an A-student in which no one was willing to back down. No one certainly expected that it's the day they became each other's 'first love'.

After school graduation, everyone went to different universities to pursue their dreams. Tong's 'childishness' and Lin's 'maturity' conflicted and everything collapsed. They eventually broke up. Since then, because of his arrogance, Tong has never contacted Lin for over two years until now.

Upon hearing the news of the tsunami, he tries calling Lin with concern until he finally reaches her. A phone call that night makes Tong understand why he can never forget his first love no matter how much time has passed. It also makes him realize that lost time does not return, and the two of them have to part to follow their own paths.

Eight years later, Tong is now an adult. He reunites with Lin once again at her wedding reception. Tong has finally learned that the cool guy he has always aspired to be is the guy who feels nothing but happiness to see Lin get married and have a happy life. Even though he is not the one by her side, Lin will always be his first love.
